Preparing New Mexico's Workforce for 2020 and Beyond:

What Business Leaders Must Know to Meet the Challenge!

This conference is pending up to 7 SHRM PDCs and HRCI credit hours.

Businesses across New Mexico are experiencing a time of extraordinary transformation as technological, demographic, and social changes occur.

- Gain insight into how employers, policy makers, and educators all play a role in closing the skills gap
- Learn about global and national trends in workforce demographics and the continual need to adapt to a digital world
- Explore ways business leaders can work with other experts to create the best solutions to meeting the challenges we face

We're bringing together game changers and bold thinkers to start a conversation regarding the opportunities that exist in New Mexico to reimagine the next generation of workforce.

- State of the State Address related to what's on the horizon for New Mexico by Lieutenant Governor Howie Morales
- Discussion between global and local thought leaders in government, education, and business, including Johnny C. Taylor, SHRM-SCP, CEO of the Society for Human Resource Management, Cabinet Secretary of Economic Development, Alicia J. Keyes, Dr. Sam Minner, President of New Mexico Highlands University, and Vince Kadlubek, CEO of Meow Wolf
- Presentation by Tom Garrity, President & CEO of The Garrity Group, on the demographics of New Mexico's workforce
- Presentation on what it will take to create a new business model that allows us to grow, attract and retain qualified workers by Mark Lautman, CEcD, Founder of the Community Economics Lab
- An optional afternoon of Masters level HR education, including Dr. Denise Montoya, SHRM SCP, SPHR, with "Disruptions in the Workplace: Preparing for What's Next...The Future is Now!" and a presentation by Jamai Blivin, Founder & CEO of Innovate+Educate
- And take part in New Mexico's very first DisruptHR Event! Watch for details on how you can help to "energize, inform, and empower people in the HR field" on the DisruptHR website and our social media sites.

Discover how can you be part of the movement to prepare New Mexico's Workforce for 2020 and beyond!
